This includes grants/cooperative agreements that, in whole or in part, involve conferences for which Federal funds cannot be used directly or indirectly to encourage participants to lobby or to instruct participants on how to lobby.

Any activity designed to influence action in regard to a particular piece of pending legislation would be considered lobbying. That is lobbying for or against pending legislation, as well as indirect or grass roots lobbying efforts by award recipients that are directed at inducing members of the public to contact their elected representatives at the Federal , State or local levels to urge support of, or opposition to, pending legislative proposals is prohibited.

Recipients of CDC grants and cooperative agreements need to be careful to prevent CDC funds from being used to influence or promote pending legislation. With respect to conferences, public events, publications, and grassroots activities that relate to specific legislation, recipients of CDC funds should give close attention to isolating and separating the appropriate use of CDC funds from non-CDC funds.

CDC also cautions recipients of CDC funds to be careful not to give the appearance that CDC funds are being used to carry out activities in a manner that is prohibited under Federal law.

All reported activity under the CPPW Communities Initiative, including Recovery Act reporting, must be activity that is consistent with federal law.

For additional guidance, please refer to the FOA, Additional Requirement # 12 on lobbying restrictions and 31 U.S.C. Section 1352; 18 U.S.C. Section 1913.

The grantee is to ensure that the sub-recipients receiving CDC funds also meet these requirements (if total Federal grant or grant funds received exceed $500,000). The grantee must also ensure that appropriate corrective action is taken within six months after receipt of the sub-recipient audit report in instances of non-compliance with Federal law and regulations. The grantee is to consider whether sub-recipient audits necessitate adjustment of the grantees own accounting records. If a sub-recipient is not required to have a program-specific audit, the Grantee is still required to perform adequate monitoring of sub-recipient activities. The grantee is to require each sub-recipient to permit independent auditors to have access to the sub-recipients records and financial statements. Summary of the Project

The American culture of fast-paced lifestyles, colored by sedentary activity and fast-food diets, is lending itself to a growing rate of obesity. Poor nutrition and lack of exercise lead to chronic diseases and premature death. In Louisville the leading cause of death in 2005 was diseases of the heart with an age-adjusted rate of 234.9 per 100,000 exceeding the Healthy People 2010 goal of no more than 166 deaths and the U.S. rate of 211.1. The age adjusted diabetes death rate in 2004 was 31 deaths per 100,000 compared to the national rate of 24.8. As in most American communities, in Louisville the burdens of social and economic disadvantage and ill health fall disproportionately on certain population subgroups, especially people of color. In the city, the rate of deaths from homicide for African Americans is nearly six times that for Whites, and rates of both low birth weight and infant deaths among African Americans are twice those for Whites.

This proposed Louisville Putting Prevention to Work project builds upon the foundation laid by Louisville's award-winning Mayor's Healthy Hometown Movement, which began in 2004 and has engaged hundreds of community partners who represent all spectrums of the community and are emblematic of a breadth of community change agents. The Community Action Plan proposes the implementation of 24 'shovel ready' strategies that span the socioecological model reaching the individual, groups, organizations, community, and lead to public policy, environment and system changes. Strategies include those that are community-wide (conducting a 'Food Fight' social marketing campaign and enhancing infrastructure to support bicycling and walking), as well as those that are specific to schools (increasing student input in food and beverage choices and utilizing student grown produce) and neighborhoods in need (improving community policing and implementing a 'Healthy in a Hurry' corner store initiative). Important policy changes include the Mayor appointing an Advisory Council on Food Policy, instituting a Health Impact Assessment as part of the development review process and implementing a local menu labeling policy.

Creating policy and changing environments and systems remove barriers allowing the community to transform into one that promotes healthy lifestyle choices. The key is to create change that not only reaches the entire jurisdiction but also is tailored to specific subsets within environments such as the school system and populations of specific needs. In reaching specific need populations that are disproportionately affected by poor health outcomes, it is important to cultivate an overriding understanding of the barriers to health equity such as living in a violent neighborhood with crumbling infrastructure and food deserts. It is imperative to understand the impact of poverty on health. Chronic diseases place a heavy strain on the health care system. We are committed to moving upstream to eliminate the obstacles that prohibit good nutrition and physical activity. Change needs to occur at the community-level and demands the attention of key decision makers and leaders. Communities are formed by the policies and environment that direct them. Through changes defined by evidence based practices, population-level transformation will occur. People make choices based upon the environments where they live their lives.

Summary of Strengths

The program infrastructure and fiscal management are clearly defined and discussed. The fiduciary is identified as the Louisville / Jefferson County Metro Government. The lead agency currently manages a budget over $700 million. There is a mechanism in place to manage all contracts, including sub-grants awarded to the community. A description is provided of past and current work demonstrating the applicant's capacity to handle the funds requested. Activities have been chosen that are strongly supported by this community and that have resources in position to support implementation and sustainability to keep these activities going. The applicant discusses the health department's current staff that is in place to reach the goals and benchmarks of this cooperative agreement. Resumes and a detailed description of skills and experiences are provided to demonstrate the applicant ability to effectively carry out the goals and objectives of this proposal. The applicant proposed to use PolicyLink, a national consultant to provide research, technical assistance, and training on collaborative, multi-field strategies to improve community environments particularly in low income communities and communities of color, which is in direct line with what is being asked of the applicant. Letters of the support are provided from all of the leaders proposed in this application who will be working on the project. Detailed descriptions are provided of the roles and responsibilities of staff on the project. There is a significant amount of policy experience among the staff working full-time on this project.

The leadership team and community coalitions are clearly discussed and appear to be suitable. The leadership team is identified and has provided letter of intent of their full support to the project. Each member will have a significant role in the coalition—the Mayor's Healthy Hometown Movement. The applicant provides a very nice matrix detailing the name, position, and agency represented for each member on the leadership team. Each letter from the leadership team member states their intent and commitment to the project, including their agencies' commitments of resources to this community effort. The applicant provides membership list and meeting notes of the coalition and activity commitment. A detailed description is provided of the past and current efforts of the coalition by sub-committee. For example, the Living Active Committee lead a Pedestrian Summit that lead to lead the policy development and environmental changes needed to build communities that are conducive to physical activity. The applicant also provides examples of collaboration among coalition member agencies (e.g., 2008 Pedestrian Summit). The applicant is seeking technical assistance from the Regional Health Administrator regarding how to leverage other federal funds and foundations.

The intervention area, CAP, and intervention strategies are addressed comprehensively. The Community Action Plan addresses 15 overarching strategies that identify specific action to policy development and environment and system changes to increase levels of physical activity, improve nutrition, and decrease overweight/obesity prevalence. The strategies build upon Louisville investments to generate healthy eating and active lifestyles that promote wellness where Louisville residents—live, learn, work, and play. The area of need is clearly defined as Metro Louisville / Jefferson County. Data are provided from the US Census and Health Status Assessment Report of 2006 describing the population to be served. The target area, Louisville Metro, faces a number of serious and interrelated social, economic, and health challenges. The applicant describes the assets as past success in the developing policy in the county. For example, Jefferson County Smoke Free Coalition successfully implemented a smoking-ban in Louisville Metro. Staff will rely on its successful smoking policy experience as it moves forward with other policy changes. The applicant describes the barrier to the project is the decentralization of key focus points which are distributed under a broad base of systems (educational institutions, the healthcare industry, government divisions, grassroots agencies and non-profits) each with its own nuances that may impede progress. The applicant is proposing the address obesity, physical activity, and nutrition. The strategies for policy, systems, and environmental changes for all points of intervention are captured on the MAPPS table. The strategies listed on this table fall under 15 overarching strategies identified in the Recommended Community Strategies and Measurements to Prevent Obesity in the United States and Implementation and Measurement Guide. The work described in this proposal is based on previous work in Louisville, along with other regions, to developed top priorities, which were used to craft Kentucky's Nutrition and Physical Activity State Action Plan. In February 2009, the Partnership published Shaping Kentucky's Future, Policies to Reduce Obesity following a survey of regional coalitions. The interventions outlined in the Community Action Plan are selected based on their potential for communitywide reach and impact on the designated area of specific need. Degree of impact was also assessed, as was consistency with short- and long-term goals delineated in the Kentucky Action Plan and Policy Recommendations. The two-year CAP describes the overall integrated strategy, identifying selected interventions, describing key activities, milestones, and timelines including SMART objectives and outcomes. The applicant provides a fully detailed CAP addressing all of the requirements of the FOA. There is an excellent description of the policies anticipated from the activities being proposed in the application. The applicant also describes the linkages made in the past that supports the state- and community-level program to prevention and control chronic diseases. The strategies proposed build upon the existing work of these of the MHHM and follow the direction of the Mayor's Strategic Plan and the LMPHW mission. Existing work developed pilot strategies that laid the groundwork for this proposal. The applicant sees the CDC funds as a means to catapult their work forward. The applicant provides evidence of their leveraging strategies to sustain the project after the funding period. The Black Mothers Breastfeeding Association to train healthcare providers who interact with women of color is an example of the applicant's capacity to incorporate cultural diversity needs of the African American population.

Plans for project monitoring and evaluation appear to be excellent. A clear description is provided of the methods used to meet the requirements for evaluation as specified in the FOA. For example, the evaluation adapted from the Health Impact Assessment will: 1) identify the specific policy; 2) identify the health effect; 3) assess the effect on communities and businesses; and 4) report results to stakeholders. Stakeholders, including participating local decision makers, those implementing and exposed to the interventions, and national collaborators (e.g., CDC), will provide input into every evaluation process stage. The local team will participate fully in the national evaluation strategy, collaborate fully to complete independently coordinated evaluation elements, and provide data in a timely manner. The applicant proposes an evaluation design that is a pre-post time series with a component to track processes that lead to change in policy or systems. A single sample longitudinal time series study focuses on short-term changes to assure the appropriate implementation of the program. The applicant also provides a detailed description of the project's evaluation plan. The CDC Evaluation Framework in a pre / post design will be used. For the data collection the applicant proposes use the Change Tool. The applicant proposes the YRBSS survey data will be collected in collaboration with Jefferson County Public Schools (JCPS), Kentucky Department of Education (KDE), Kentucky Cabinet for Health and Family Services (CHFS), and Louisville Metro Public Health and Wellness (LMPHW). The KDE will work with the Family Resource and Youth Services Centers (FRYSC) to administer the YRBSS to survey classrooms. FRYSC, JCPS, LMPHW and U of L staff will be trained to administer the survey to a sample of 1500 to 2000 JCPS 9th-12th graders in fall 2010 and at project end. Letters are provided from the JCPS giving their support to all of the project activities that involve the Public Schools. These letters of support include collecting and reporting YRBSS data. JCPS records biometric data for kindergarteners and entering the 6th graders from required physicians' physical exams. The JCPS will collect, analyze, and report these data.

Programmatic support needs are well-defined and discussed. The applicant has utilized CDC support in the past and sees this funding opportunity as an opportunity to work with the CDC again. The applicant recognizes that their strength of partnerships also may produce unintended barriers. Their strategies are distributed through multiple systems (e.g. government, healthcare, education, non-profits) which may impede progress. Their partnership with PolicyLink and work with CDC will offset this barrier. Stated areas of need for support includes statistical expertise to guide the conversion of raw YBRSS data to become ready for analysis, specifically in the area of weighting data to be representative of the population.

Summary of Weaknesses / Concerns

The intervention area, CAP, and intervention strategies are addressed comprehensively; however, some panel member felt that although the applicant provides data on the target population and the entire jurisdiction, the data year and applicability is difficult to follow. For example during the description of the statistics for the jurisdiction LMPHW notes, "Louisville was ranked first in the percent of mothers who smoke during pregnancy and seventh in the lung cancer mortality rate," and notes that the birth rate for teenage was higher than the nation's rate. The applicant does not relate these statistics to obesity, physical activity, and nutrition. In other descriptions of the statistics for the jurisdiction the year of the statistics are not easily determined (p. 11-15).

Budget

The budget is reasonable, clearly justified, and appears to be consistent with the proposed activities and intent of the initiative. Reductions were recommended during the budget mark up process due to limited programmatic funding. The budget mark up team also noted that the proposed loan fund is questionable and recommends review by PGO to answer the question, is this allowable or should this expenditure be changed to a mini-grant format. Additionally, all contracts need enhanced accountability measures.

Human Subjects

The applicant has adequately addressed the requirements of Title 45 CFR Part 46 for the protection of human subjects.

Recommendation(s)

If considered for funding, the applicant should address any issues of concern noted in the Weaknesses / Concerns, Budget, and Human Subjects Sections and / or as follows:

☐ Consider tailoring the health statistic data for the jurisdiction and noting the year of the statistics.
